

Compressed Air Rifle 8001

First presentation of new product

ANSCHÜTZ
DIE MEISTER MACHER

The models 9003 Premium and 8002 have successfully been established on the air rifle market. Many national and international top results could be reached with the ANSCHÜTZ air rifles in the past few months.

The 8001 Compressed Air is based on the renowned barreled action of the compressed air rifle model 8002. This model is especially interesting for beginners who are looking for a high quality, attractive but low-cost air rifle version.

The 8001 Compressed Air is equipped with a non-stained walnut right/left stock with a cheek piece adjustable in height and the rubber butt plate 4709 A. The anti-skid rubber butt plate which is also adjustable in height can be lengthened by spacers. The backend stock is prepared to take the butt plate carrier with tiltable column guide. The cocking lever is adjusted at the right side. It is possible, however, to attach it to the left as well. In order to make an individual adaptation to the shooter possible, the trigger blade is multiply adjustable. The rifle is delivered with the popular sight set 6834.

As this beginner model is based on a modular principle it is possible for the advanced shooter to attach most of the other components of the ANSCHÜTZ accessory range such as the aluminium butt plates, the multiply adjustable butt plate and cheek piece carriers as well as diverse stock versions and additional weights.

Due to the low price and the many extension possibilities this rifle is extraordinarily suitable for shooting clubs.

The 8001 Compressed Air is available at your local dealer. Please find further information in the internet under www.anschuetz-sport.com. News on this and other ANSCHÜTZ products are also spread via the free-of-charge ANSCHÜTZ Newsletter to which you can subscribe in the internet as well.
